Portraits of a People 2006

recently a number of cutting edge african american artists have investigated issues of race and american identity in their work relying on the use of historical source material and the subversion of archaic media this scrutiny of little known yet uncannily familiar racialized imagery by contemporary artists has created a renewed interest in the politics of nineteenth century american art and the role of race in the visual discourse portraits of a people looks critically at images made of and by african americans extending back to the late 1700s when a portrait of african born poet phillis wheatley was drawn by her friend the slave scipio moorhead from the american revolution until the civil war and on into the gilded age american artists created dynamic images of black sitters in their effort to create enduring symbols of self possessed identity many of these portraits provide a window into cultural stereotypes and practices for example while some of these pictures were undoubtedly of distinct named individuals many are now known by titles that reference only generalized types such as joshua johnston s painting portrait of a man c 1805 10 or the silhouette inscribed mr shaw s blackman cut around 1802 by the manumitted slave moses williams by the middle of the nineteenth century photography began to offer black sitters an affordable and accessible way to fashion an individual identity and sometimes obtain financial support as in the case of the numerous cartes de visites produced during the 1860s and 70s that bear the image of the feminist activist sojourner truth above the text i sell the shadow to support the substance portraits of a people features colour reproductions of over 100 important portraits in various media ranging from paintings photographs and silhouettes to book frontispieces and popular prints essays by gwendolyn dubois shaw consider silhouettes and african american identity in the early republic photography and the black presence in the public sphere after the civil war and portrait painting and social fluidity among middle class african american artists and sitters this landmark publication will change the way that we view the images of blacks in the nineteenth century

Portraits and Philosophy 2019-11-20

portraits are everywhere one finds them not only in museums and galleries but also in newspapers and magazines in the homes of people and in the boardrooms of companies on stamps and coins on millions of cell phones and computers despite its huge popularity however portraiture hasn t received much philosophical attention while there are countless art historical studies of portraiture contemporary philosophy has largely remained silent on the subject this book aims to address that lacuna it brings together philosophers and philosophically minded historians with different areas of expertise to discuss this enduring and continuously fascinating genre the chapters in this collection are ranged under five broad themes part i examines the general nature of portraiture and what makes it distinctive as a genre part ii looks at some of the subgenres of portraiture such as double portraiture and at some special cases such as sport card portraits and portraits of people not present how emotions are expressed and evoked by portraits is the central focus of part iii while part iv explores the relation between portraiture fiction and depiction more generally finally in part v some of the ethical issues surrounding portraiture are addressed the book closes with an epilogue about portraits of philosophers portraits and philosophy tangles with deep questions about the nature and effects of portraiture in ways that will substantially advance the scholarly discussion of the genre it will be of interest to scholars and students working in philosophy of art history of art and the visual arts
