the construction of urban defences was one of the hallmarks of the late roman and late antique periods 300 600 ad throughout the western and eastern empire city walls were the most significant construction projects of their time and they redefined the urban landscape their appearance and monumental scale as well as the cost of labour and material are easily comparable to projects from the high empire however urban circuits provided late antique towns with a new means of self representation while their final appearance and construction techniques varied greatly the cost involved and the dramatic impact that such projects had on the urban topography of late antique cities mark city walls as one of the most important urban initiatives of the period to date research on city walls in the two halves of the empire has highlighted chronological and regional variations enabling scholars to rethink how and why urban circuits were built and functioned in late antiquity although these developments have made a significant contribution to the understanding of late antique city walls studies are often concerned with one single monument small group of monuments or a particular region and the issues raised do not usually lead to a broader perspective creating an artificial divide between east and west it is this broader understanding that this book seeks to provide the volume and its contributions arise from a conference held at the british school at rome and the swedish institute of classical studies in rome on june 20 21 2018 it includes articles from world leading experts in late antique history and archaeology and is based around important themes that emerged at the conference such as construction spolia use late antique architecture culture and urbanism empire wide changes in late antiquity and the perception of this practice by local inhabitants indeed an obstacle to integration these are some of the burning questions which dominate the current politicized debate on immigration in western europe in this book leading historians and social scientists analyze and compare a variety of settlement processes in past and present migration to western europe identifying general factors in the process of adaptation of new immigrants the contributors trace social changes effected by recent european immigration and the parallels with the great american migration of the 1880s 1920s the history of migration to western europe and the way these migrants found their place in the receiving societies is not only essential to understand the way nations deal with newcomers in the present but also constitutes a highly interesting laboratory for different paths of integration now and then by analyzing and comparing a wealth of settlement processes both in the past and in the present this book is both a bold interdisciplinary endeavor and at the same time the first attempt to identify general factors underlying the way migrants adapt to their new surroundings as well as how societies change under the influence of immigration the chapters in the book both look at specific groups in various periods but also analyses the structure of the state churches unions and other important organized actors in western european nation states moreover the results are embedded in the more theoretical american literature on the comparison of old and new migrants all chapters have an explicit comparative perspective either by comparing different groups or different periods whereas the general conclusion ties together the various outcomes in a systematic way highlighting the main answers to the central questions about the various outcomes of settlement processes publisher
