how fictional representations of dead bodies develop over the twentieth century is the central concern of lisa k perdigao s study of american writers arguing that the crisis of bodily representation can be traced in the move from modernist entombment to postmodernist exhumation perdigao considers how works by writers from f scott fitzgerald william faulkner willa cather and richard wright to jody shields toni morrison octavia butler and jeffrey eugenides reflect changing attitudes about dying death and mourning for example while modernist writers direct their plots toward a transformation of the dead body by way of metaphor postmodernist writers exhume the transformed body reasserting its materiality rather than viewing these tropes in oppositional terms perdigao examines the implications for narrative of the authors apparently contradictory attempts to recover meaning at the site of loss she argues that entombment and exhumation are complementary drives that speak to the tension between the desire to bury the dead and the need to remember indicating shifts in critical discussions about the body and about the function of aesthetics in relation to materialized violence and loss far from a realm of pure fantasy helping people to escape harsh realities fairy tales and the films that rooted themselves in their tropes and traditions played an integral role in formulating and expressing the anxieties of modernity as well as its potential for radical magical transformation in film and fairy tales kristian moen examines the role played by fairy tales in shaping cinema its culture and its discourse during its most formative years well established by the feerie of the nineteenth century as popular entertainment and visual spectacle the wonders of mutability offered by fairy tale fantasies in the early films of melies situated cinema itself as a realm of enchantment rife with enthralling and disturbing possibilities through an analysis of early film theorists and a detailed case study of tourneur s 1918 film the blue bird moen shows how the spectacles and tropes of the fairy tale continued to shape ideas of cinema s place in modern life stars like mary pickford and marguerite clark who not only played fantasy roles but presented their off screen personae in deliberately fantastic terms and the transformative claims of modernity expressed through visions such as orientalist fairylands are analysed to show the extent to which fairy tales were used to negotiate different experiences of modernity the giddy adventures of social mobility consumer culture and identity transformation the threats and anxieties of cultural change impermanence and mutability moen traces the evolution of the fairy tale in film to its self aestheticising peak in snow white and the seven dwarfs alongside ironic allusions in films like hitchcock s rebecca and howard hawks ball of fire concluding with an examination of how fairy tale visions of fantastic transformation have seen a resurgence in contemporary cinema from tim burton to harry potter in the process he shows how cinema made fairy tales modern and fairy tales helped make cinema what it is today
