regulation can influence the structure conduct and performance of consumer product markets and the structure of product markets can influence regulation since the vast majority of prescription drugs consumed by americans are generic the structure of the u s generic prescription drug market is of wide interest the supply of prescription drugs in the u s is also heavily regulated by the u s food and drug administration fda we describe events leading up to the passage and implementation of the generic drug user fee amendments in 2012 gdufa i and compare its fda commitments provisions goals and fee structure to that of the 1992 prescription drug user fee act pdufa for branded drugs although gdufa i expires september 30 2017 reauthorization for gdufa ii is currently underway and is likely to shift the user fee structure away from annual facility fees to annual program fees we explain how the fee structure of gdufa i and that being considered for gdufa ii erects barriers to entry and creates scale and scope economies for incumbent manufacturers of generic drugs furthermore in order to implement fees under gdufa i fda required the submission of self reported data on generic manufacturing practices including domestic and foreign active pharmaceutical ingredient api and finished dosage form fdf facilities these data provide an unprecedented window into the recent evolution of generic drug manufacturing markets our analyses of these data suggest that generic drug manufacturing in 2017 is quite concentrated a very large portion of anda holders have small portfolios consisting of less than five andas while a small number of very large anda holders have portfolios consisting of hundreds or even thousands of andas the number of api and fdf facilities have each declined by approximately 10 11 between 2013 and 2017 furthermore in 2017 generic manufacturing is largely foreign and has become increasingly so since 2013 we discuss the implications of the current structure of the u s generic prescription drug market for gdufa ii ratification and implementation

there are in general three types of fees used by platforms the fixed membership fee transaction fee and proportional fee in real life all three fees are used by different platforms often the fee charged by the market maker is a combination of the fixed transaction and proportional fees we try to offer a rationale for the usage of these fee structures compared with the transaction fee the profit for the platform is higher under the proportional fee if the consumption value is high enough then the profit under the membership fee is the lowest if the value is low enough then the profit under the membership fee is the highest if the value is in the middle then the profit under the membership fee is in the middle as well however when we allow free entry of merchants results are different the profit of the card network could be lower under the proportional fee than the transaction fee with free entry of merchants equilibrium under the proportional fee and the membership fee is the same consumer surplus is lower under the transaction fee than the proportional fee and the membership fee but social welfare could be higher under the transaction fee we also consider regulation of the fee structure and the optimal fee despite the overabundance of data collected and analyzed about tuition as a primary cost of public higher education little to no attention has been paid to fees as a portion of that cost most of the existing research combines tuition and required fees into one entity rarely separating fees from tuition and disregarding non required fees altogether framed by the theories of academic capitalism resource dependency and neoliberalism slaughter rhoades 2004 this descriptive analysis examines the use of required and non required fees as part of the overall price of public higher education institutions differentiating at both the in state and out of state and the undergraduate and graduate levels further internal and external institutional factors are compared with the use of fees as a revenue generating strategy to see if differences exist among certain public institutions findings suggest that there are differences among fee structures as institutions that are more research intensive tend to charge higher fees than non research intensive indicating that research institutions may be using fees as a way to increase revenue enhance perceived quality and remain competitive in the marketplace results also indicate that the external variables of region state governance structure political culture and regulation contribute to variations in fee structures exhibiting that fees are not as simple in their creation as one might think the results could prove valuable in the arenas of finance and policy creation for public higher education institutions by allowing policy to be created that will change the current fee environment from a hidden procedure to a more evident process past reforms have put the peruvian pension system on a largely fiscally sustainable path but the system faces important challenges in providing adequate pension levels for a large share of the population using administrative microdata at the affiliate level we project replacement rates in the defined benefit db and defined contribution dc pillars over the next 30 years and simulate the impact of various reform scenarios on the average level and distribution of pensions in the db pillar the regressive minimum contribution period should be re thought while in the dc pillar a broadening of the contribution base and or an increase in contribution rates would help increase replacement rates relative to the baseline forecast of 25 33 percent a higher net real rate of return than assumed in the baseline would also have a significant positive impact in the medium term labor market reform to tackle informality and a broad pension reform to restructure the system and avoid competition between the db and dc pillars should be a priority given low pension coverage having a strong non contributory pillar will remain important for the foreseeable future
