Global TV 2008-08-17 a reporter for the los angeles times once noted that i love lucy is said to be on the air somewhere in the world 24 hours a day that lucy's madcap antics can be watched anywhere at any time is thanks to television syndication a booming global marketplace that imports and exports tv shows programs from different countries are packaged bought and sold all over the world under the watch of an industry that is extraordinarily lucrative for major studios and production companies in global tv denise d bielby and c lee harrington seek to understand the machinery of this marketplace its origins and history its inner workings and its product management in so doing they are led to explore the cultural significance of this global trade and to ask how it is so remarkably successful despite the inherent cultural differences between shows and local audiences how do culture specific genres like american soap operas and latin telenovelas so easily cross borders and adapt to new cultural surroundings why is the nanny whose gum chewing star is from queens new york a smash in italy importantly bielby and harrington also ask which kinds of shows fail what is lost in translation considering such factors as censorship and other such state specific policies what are the inevitable constraints of crossing over highly experienced in the field bielby and harrington provide a unique and richly textured look at global television through a cultural lens one that has an undeniable and complex effect on what shows succeed and which do not on an international scale

Heartland TV 2008 winner of the 2009 society for cinema and media studies katherine singer kovacs book award the midwest of popular imagination is a heartland characterized by traditional cultural values and mass market dispositions whether cast positively as authentic pastoral populist hardworking and all american or negatively as backward narrow minded unsophisticated conservative and out of touch the myth of the heartland endures heartland tv examines the centrality of this myth to television's promotion and development programming and marketing appeals and public debates over the medium's and its audience's cultural worth victoria e johnson investigates how the square image of the heartland has been ritually recuperated on prime time television from the lawrence welk show in the 1950s to documentary specials in the 1960s to the mary tyler moore show in the 1970s to ellen in the 1990s she also examines news specials on the oklahoma city bombing to reveal how that city has been inscribed as the epitome of a timeless pastoral heartland and concludes with an analysis of network branding practices and appeals to an imagined red state audience johnson argues that non white queer and urban culture is consistently erased from depictions of the midwest in order to reinforce its reassuring image as white and straight through analyses of policy industry discourse and case studies of specific shows heartland tv exposes the cultural function of the midwest as a site of national transference and disavowal with regard to race sexuality and citizenship ideals
